

2.5

Arranging a meeting

Worksheet

- A Fill in the gaps in phrases 1–2 and choose the right words in the box below.

At the start of a call, you want to ask Are you busy?. You can say:

- 1 _____ a good time _____ ?
2 Are you in the middle _____ ?

At the end of the call you want to confirm the plans and finish in a friendly way. Look at the pairs of words in the dialogue below. Decide if only one is correct, or if both are possible.

A: OK. I think that's (3) all/everything.

A: Right, I'll do that. Give my (7) regards/best wishes to Mr. Koyama.

B: (4) Right/So, I look forward to (5) see/seeing you here in Tokyo next Wednesday. Give me a (6) call/ring if you have any problems.

B: OK. I'll (8) tell/say him you called. Goodbye.

- B Complete the sentences below using words from the box.

any time make suit confirm sounds busy get back to about should until manage

- 1 When would _____ you? How _____ next Tuesday afternoon?
2 What time on Wednesday can you _____ it?
3 OK, I _____ be able to _____ some time after four.
4 Let me see, I'm out of the office _____ lunchtime, but _____ after that would be fine.
5 I'm afraid I'm _____ on Tuesday afternoon. What about Wednesday?
6 That _____ fine. Can I _____ you later today to _____ it?

Now put the sentences in the correct order to make a dialogue arranging an appointment.

- C Work with a partner.

Student A call Student B. Check it's a good time to call.

Try to find a time and place to meet. It's difficult because you're both very busy. Eventually you succeed.

Finish the call by confirming the plans.

- D You might have to call back to cancel the arrangement. Look at the pairs of words in the phrases below. Decide if only one is correct, or if both are possible.

I'm sorry but I can't (1) make/manage the meeting next week.

Would you (2) mind/matter if we put the meeting (3) back/off to the following week?

I (4) must/should apologize again. I'm afraid it's completely (5) inevitable/unavoidable.

Now have a second call with the same partner. Student B calls back to cancel and rearrange the previous meeting.