

Easilife and Novex: Student BWorksheet

You are the Sales Director of Novex Computer Solutions. Your company supplies computers. Your address is 34 Salisbury Road, Milton Keynes, MK4 8KP. Your partner's company sells office furniture.

You are going to exchange correspondence with your partner because you are interested in each other's products. Before you start, look at the left column to see the whole sequence.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 Enquiry
You are thinking about buying some new office furniture. | Write a letter to the Sales Director of Easilife Office Furniture to ask for general information about their office furniture. Their address is York House, 97 Cannon Street, London EC4 5AD. (Use the full layout of a business letter in this first letter.) |
| 2 Reply to an enquiry
Easilife are interested in your products as well. | Reply to Easilife's letter, enclosing some brochures, price lists etc. You know the name of their Sales Director, so use it at the start of your letter. |
| 3 Request for a quotation
You're interested in their office furniture. | Write an e-mail to Easilife, asking for a quotation for some specific products (for example: 20 typist's chairs, four executive desks and four executive armchairs). You may think of other questions. |
| 4 Quotation
Be positive and helpful. You might have a new customer. | Write a fax to Easilife. Give them a quotation. State your terms of sale: price, any discounts (e.g. prompt payment), delivery time. Deal with any other questions in Easilife's last e-mail. |
| 5 Counter-proposal
You want the furniture, but maybe you can get better terms. | Send an e-mail to Easilife, making a counter-proposal. For example, you may want a better price, a larger discount or a shorter delivery time. |
| 6 Reply to a counter-proposal
You cannot give Easilife what they want, but make a small concession to get the business. | Reply by e-mail. Begin by apologizing for the delay in replying, then tell them that you can't accept their counter-proposal. However, you are prepared to offer something (less than they want). |
| 7 Order
You've decided to buy the office furniture. | Their reply is acceptable and you now want to make an order. Write a short letter to Easilife to send with your order form. |
| 8 Dispatch advice
Let Easilife know you've sent the goods. | Write an e-mail to Easilife. Thank them for their order and tell them that the goods were sent this morning. |
| 9 Complaint
You have a problem. | The office furniture has arrived! However, one piece is damaged. Also, there is a mistake on the invoice. Write an e-mail to Easilife. |
| 10 Reply to a complaint
Deal with their problem. | Reply by e-mail. Apologize for the faulty computer. Ask Easilife to return it, and say you will send a replacement immediately. Apologize and give a reason for the mistake in the invoice – say you will send a new one. |