Student A: Teenager

You need to borrow your parents' car next Saturday to go out for the day with some friends. Persuade your parent to let you have the car.

- You are really looking forward to the trip which has been planned for some time. You haven't asked your parents before now because one of your friends was going to take his car, but unfortunately it's not working and is being repaired.
- The last time you borrowed the car a small mark appeared on the door while it was parked. You offered to pay but your parents refused.
- You often wash the car and your parents appreciate this. Next Sunday you are free and can wash the car.

Student B: Parent

Think of one aspect of your son/daughter's behaviour that you are not happy with and want to talk to him/her about: _____.

- Next Saturday afternoon you have planned a visit to your parents (your son/daughter's grandparents). You want your son/daughter to go with you, but you haven't told him/her yet. Your parents are getting quite old and they asked especially to see your son/daughter this time.
- Your son/daughter keeps asking to borrow your car. You don't like this. The last time it came back with a small mark on the door. You had to pay, of course.
- Very occasionally your son/daughter offers to clean your car for you, which you appreciate very much. Next Sunday would be a good day for him/her to clean the car.
