

In Company

In Company helps professional adults build the skills and language needed to take part in successful staff meetings.

Learners study how effective meetings are structured, how chairpeople guide the process, and how participants contribute through reports, questions, discussion, and decision making.

Model meeting transcripts, practical language work, and meeting simulations help learners move from understanding the process to using the language with confidence.

Inside the book:

The purpose, roles, and structure of business meetings

Chairing a meeting and managing the agenda

Giving reports and short topic-leader presentations

Asking questions and taking part in discussion

Making decisions and considering proposals

Taking notes and preparing minutes or reports

Useful grammar and vocabulary for meetings

For professionals who need to communicate clearly, collaborate effectively, and participate confidently in English-language meetings.
